

FXall Wins 'Best Independent Online FX Trading System' in Global Finance Best Foreign Exchange Providers Awards

9 December 2009 - FXall, the world's leading electronic foreign exchange platform, has been named 'Best Independent Online FX Trading System' in the 2010 Global Finance Best Foreign Exchange Providers Awards for the sixth consecutive year.

This accolade reflects the strength of FXall's market leading offering. FXall's independent status and award-winning technology have secured its position as the natural choice for institutional FX investors. FXall is a trusted partner, delivering an edge to sophisticated FX investors. More than 800 global institutions rely on FXall's trading and straight through processing solutions to support a multitude of trading strategies in all market conditions.

Phil Weisberg, CEO at FXall, said: "This industry recognition is a tribute to our unwavering focus on delivering advanced technology across all our client segments – banks, corporations, asset managers and active traders. We maintain a strong focus on product development to provide today's sophisticated FX investors with the depth of liquidity and the broadest range of execution mechanisms required for all market conditions. 2009 was a very successful year for us as we introduced a range of solutions specifically designed for active traders in response to changing market dynamics and we are pleased to continue our position as the natural choice for clients for their FX business."

FXall offers a comprehensive suite of FX trading products that offer either a standalone solution or combined multi product functionality. FXall will continue to develop new and existing products that complement its extensive range of services that, together or in isolation, achieve the best results for clients.
